A CITY BASED HEART AND WELLNESS CENTRE OFFERS INTEGRATED & NON-SURGICAL MEDICAL APPROACH

Thousands of patients worldwide complain of recurring angina pain after undergoing heart bypass surgery, coronary angioplasty or stents. There is a good news for such patients who do not wish to undergo these procedures or may be unfit for the same. As an alternative method, ESMR therapy in India is fast gaining popularity as a dependable, non-surgical cardiac treatment. For the 1st time in Gujarat, Ayushman Heart and Wellness Centre has introduced the German concept of ESMR in their clinic for the benefit of patients who experience re-blockage after angioplasty and bypass surgery.

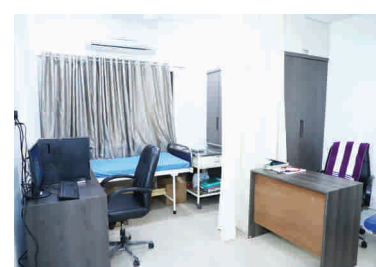

ESMR stands for Extracorporeal Shockwave Myocardial Revascularization. Also known as Non-Invasive Cardiac Angiogenesis Therapy (NICATH), it is a new treatment for improving the blood supply to the heart muscles. ESMR treatment is performed using a shock wave generator that is designed to address the unique clinical-anatomical requirements of the chest cavity.

ESMR therapy is useful to patients suffering from refractory angina and those who do not wish to undergo surgery. ESMR treatment has many benefits like-no surgery, painless, safe for patient of all ages, cost-effective and requires no hospitalisation. An added advantage is that it has a short treatment time of just 9 sittings spread across a period of three weeks to three months depending on the protocol. Ayushman Clinic has successfully implemented ESMR technology and is giving a new lease of hope to heart patients.
